Mushrooms figured only fleetingly in the report, as a whole, by Inspector of Weights and Measures Newton Jones. He told of having been "shorted" both in the weight of the mushrooms and in the declared weight of the basket. Even though Inspector Jones had bought the mushrooms for his own consumption at a very

Legislature Could Cost Town Money

A bill in the Legislature compelling towns to wait until the polls are closed to begin counting ballots would cost the town a lot of money — and delay the tabulation by many hours.

Town Clerk George Winslow, asked to comment on the bill, said a final tabulation in a national or state election wouldn't be completed until the "wee hours — perhaps not so wee at that. Possibly nearer breakfast time." He explained that poll workers have to have some time for supper following the closing of the polls at 7 p.m., with counting possibly beginning at 8 p.m. If the entire day's balloting had to be counted then, the results would be a lengthy delay and extra expense for more election officers.

The bill, which passed through the House last week by a narrow margin, is currently before the State Senate. It has been considered in many other sessions, always meeting defeat. Cities may not begin the count of ballots until the polls close under the present law, but towns may do so as soon as a block of 50 ballots is available. A unanimous vote of election officers at the polling place is required before the counting can begin, however.

Winslow pointed out that an election officer here has, occasionally, insisted that counting be delayed — only to ask, later in the day, to have the restriction removed when the individual realized how much work was piling up.

Proponents of the plan suggest that, in some towns, it is possible for candidates to learn how the balloting is progressing and take counter-measures. They claim that this gives an advantage to candidates running in districts encompassing towns, while operating to the detriment of candidates whose districts are in cities.

year. But it may be increased to 10 teams — five in each of two leagues — if enough parents offer their services as volunteer operating personnel. There still is a great need for umpires and coaches in the farm system, Sirois stated.

As the player activity was continuing this week, the vital financial aspects of the Little League operation were being explored by Vice President John Auchterlonie. The League needs $1500 this year, he explained, as he made plans for the annual fund drive.

In other League news, Fred Hale was appointed manager of the Yankees, replacing Al Carpenter, who resigned because of other commitments. Hale will be assisted by Tom Brennan and Jim O'Reilly. Dave Petrie was appointed a League Commissioner.

Seek Method Of Paying Workmen

Board of Public Works employees will be paid between 12 and 12:30 on Thursdays.

That much was clear Monday night, following a lengthy discussion at the BPW meeting. Members suggested alternate methods for getting the checks to employees — either have them call directly at the treasurer's office or have the checks available at the BPW office on the second floor of the Town House.

Some question had been raised recently about BPW men arriving at the Town Hall during the working day to pick up their checks.

The Board had been informed by Treasurer Anna Greeley that she could not mail the checks Wednesday night nor could she allow the checks to be picked up by any other person than the employee, unless that person is bonded.

The 39-year-old assistant athletic director at the Army post was born in North Andover and currently lives at 17 Brechin ter. with his wife, Roberta, and two children.

The 6'6", 245 lb. coach joined the Army in 1941 and was stationed at Fort Devens. Before he was separated as a captain in 1946, he had seen service in the Philippines.

Lanni was graduated from Officers Candidate School in 1942. In 1945 in Manila he got into Special Services for the first time, coaching basketball. This is the Army section that runs sports among other programs. His real interest in athletics started there. During his Army career he also managed to play football and baseball.

As a 32-year-old freshman, he attended Merrimack College in 1949. He also coached the college basketball team. In 1951-52, while continuing his studies as an economic major, he was director of the Andover Youth Center.

He was graduated from Merrimack in 1953 and took a job at Brooks School in North Andover as athletic director. He stayed there for almost three years coaching basketball and football and teaching math and science.

In 1955 he was appointed assistant athletic director at Fort Devens. For a man who has had his hand dipped in sports since his semi-pro days in the late 1930's, it is not strange that he should say, "I like this type of work."

His basketball team this year swept through a regular season schedule with a record of 19 and two, beating the Harvard JV's and Otis Air Force Base twice. Featuring a fastbreaking attack, the high-scoring Hornets went over the 100-point mark on seven occasions. Most of his players have had college experience.

At the recent First Army Basketball Tournament at Fort Monmouth, N.J., the squad ran up against the likes of former All-Americans Si Green from Duquesne and Tom Gola from LaSalle among other stars and placed fifth in the 12-team field.

As evidence that he's still an old GI at heart Lanni presently holds a captain's rating in the active reserve. He is Liaison Officer for the 301st Field Artillery Battalion, 94th Infantry Regiment in Lawrence, Mass.

that has taken his spare-time interest and some spare cash since then. His interest is in no way limited: among the seventy-five carvings which have been selected from a larger number for the Addison Gallery display is a wide variety of subject.

The origins of these carvings are not always known: two large tillers around 300 years old, for example, have ends shaped into human figures whose appearance suggests the people of Northern Europe; the two legs of a circular table (a two-legged table is not common) are given human shapes that suggest the South Pacific, but whether they are Polynesian or Melanesian is not certain; a carved and painted warrior is seemingly 18th century Japanese, whereas a masked mother and child is almost certainly African, but of uncertain date; a double-faced female figure holding a serpent may represent Fortune and is, perhaps, Italian; the most certain attribution is a seated figure holding a weasel-like creature which was carved by Conrad Tronerud of Torsrud.

Several of the carvings are ornamented with materials other than wood, such as the silver inlay which decorates the carving of a man astride a water buffalo; or, the glass eye in the Chinese cherrywood Foo dog. Other carvings are of different materials altogether. Two red stained horn figures and portions of an ivory chess set are among these. Perhaps the most interesting aspect of the collection is that it is centered around the owner's interest in carving, although he has never attempted to carve for himself. He admits, however, that he may try some day — if he tires of the pieces he has collected.

The exhibit will continue through April 14. The Addison Gallery is open free to the public every weekday from 9 to 5 and on Sundays from 2:30 to 5.

After a year at the General Theological Seminary in New York, he entered the Harvard Divinity School and received a degree of Bachelor of Social Theology in 1956.

During the past winter he has been engaged in graduate work at the Episcopal Theological School.

Mr. Hill expects to be ordained to the Episcopal ministry in June and will begin his work here shortly afterwards. He is unmarried.

3 Appeals Board Decisions Rendered

The Appeals Board has granted permission for the removal of sand, loam and gravel from a subdivision off Argilla rd.

The Board also approved conversion of a single-family home on Punchard ave. to a two-apartment house.

Denied was the application of Alcide J. LeGendre, 136 Chestnut st., who wanted to divide his large lot into two lots, neither of which would meet Zone A requirements of the area.

The gravel permit was issued to Ralph A. Kimball and Armand J. Ratte for their proposed subdivision off Argilla rd. Generally, the permit was restricted to only the removal of material such as would be necessitated by the building of homes.

Joseph and Rose Cardella, 5 Punchard ave., received permission to convert that dwelling into two apartments with the restriction that the exterior of the building remain as it is and that a third floor area not be used for living purposes unless further permission is granted.

LeGendre had asked the board to allow a sub-division of his lot into two lots that would have less than the required 115-foot frontage and 15,000 square feet of area. The Board felt that disapproving the division would not harm the petitioner except financially and said it could find no overriding reason why the division should be allowed.

"TOWN TREE" IS DEFINED BY BOARD

An exact definition of what constitutes a town-owned tree has been furnished the tree department.

Foreman Philip Busby asked the BPW to define a town-owned tree to clear up confusion that exists every time someone asks to have a tree removed by the town, specially in relation to the use of old stone walls as property bounds.

It was explained that the town line goes only to the face of the wall and that a tree must be showing through the front face of the wall to be considered a town responsibility.

Many times, Engineer Ralph Preble Jr. explained, it is necessary to sight along an old wall and try to determine whether a tree, growing in the middle of it, is actually private or public.

Looks Sensible

At first glimpse, the proposal to have an athletic director for the public schools appears practical.

In no way competing with the present physical education department, the athletic director appears to be the answer to a disturbing problem at the High and Junior High Schools — lack of direction. For at the present time, each coach is an authority unto himself, except as the superintendent and School Committee choose to assume leadership.

It seems like a good idea to have one person at the head of athletics — not to interfere with the coaches but to coordinate activities so that too many conflicts do not develop.

How, in detail, this system should be set up and who the man should be to run it are matters for the School Committee to debate — we merely suggest that the idea is sound and should be given thorough study by the School Committee.

Any Ideas?

Some friendly debate has been going on concerning the naming of the new school in Ballardvale.

The School Committee suggested it be named "South" school, based on its location and the area it will serve.

Residents of Ballardvale lean more towards naming the school "Ballardvale" after the area in which it sits.

Both groups have suggested that townspeople express their ideas on the subject, so that a name may be selected that best represents the wishes of the residents. We'd be happy to receive any suggestions and pass them along.

Dino Valz Discusses Teachers; Full Use Of School Buildings

To the Editor of the Townsman:

"For a post town meeting issue, last week's Townsman was really thought provoking. Among the thought provokers are (1) the news story on teachers' salary evaluation with its undertones on merit, (2) your editorial on lengthening the school year and (3) the editorial on the dangers of government by a small minority. I see a connection between these items.

"To begin with, the numerous statements about overcrowding in our schools aren't the whole truth. It is becoming increasingly clear that the reason why we are spending millions for new schools is not only because we have more children but also because we lack the intelligence to use our present facilities fully. Someday we will smarten up to the point of doing the obvious and the inevitable.

"The obvious and the inevitable is to utilize present facilities at least as much as other organizations use theirs, which is 40 hours a week for 50 or 52 weeks a year. Only in education are our buildings and people so idle so much of the time.

"While the typical business operates 2000 or more hours yearly, our public classrooms function 180 days at five or six hours a day for a total of about 1000 hours yearly. Were we to use our school plant as much as offices and industrial plants are used we would find that we have excess classroom capacity.

"But will the obvious be done? Eventually, yes. In the near future, no. And for two reasons.

"Reason number one is brought out by your editorial: parents who (1) don't want their children's education to interfere with their own privileges and conveniences and who (2) don't particularly care what that education costs since they bear only a small fraction of the cost.

"This is where your first editorial comes in. A militant minority can run any town as long as the majority are indifferent to their civic interests. But if ever the chips are down, the parents will lose out on this issue.

"The second reason why normal utilization of our school facilities will be delayed lies in the attitude of teachers who quite naturally want to protect their own interests. In so doing the teachers will have to face two issues where their interest conflicts with the public's interest.

"One area of conflict concerns the time basis for teachers' pay. Teachers say they are paid by the year and resent having their annual salary divided into 40 or less to show their earnings per week of work. As discussion for year-round schooling develops, teachers may be told that if they get paid for a year they should work a year, like anyone else. In this teachers can counter only by reversing their present attitude. They can then argue they have really been paid on a work-week basis; consequently, if the work period is increased 33% from 180 days to 240, their pay should be increased proportionately. But they can't play it both ways.

"Because there has been so much loose talk about teacher shortages, many people are quite skeptical. But if the work year is increased by one third, it follows that we would wind up with a national teacher surplus. In no other human activity is critical man power so wasted as it now is in the field of education.

"A second area of conflict concerns merit pay, a subject that can no longer be avoided. Inferior teachers are protected and superior teachers are unrewarded under the present salary scales. It takes an incentive system to upgrade the profession. Only when teachers' organizations become sufficiently enlightened to see this will teachers achieve the recognition they so ardently desire. Substituting longevity for ability is a roadblock to that recognition.

"The arrival of year-round schooling is delayed not by common sense but by obstructionists. When parents place their children's education above their own convenience, when teachers recognize that their interest as a profession does not lie in maintaining a status quo already long obsolete, when the public demands efficient utilization of both school plant and teachers, then we shall have not only a staggered year-round schedule but year-round classes for all students. On that day public education will have come of age.

"Thanks, Mr. Editor, for keeping these live issues alive."

Down the Years with The Townsman

50 Years Ago — March, 1907

The students of Phillips Academy are planning to raise $50,000 for the proposed new addition to Borden gymnasium.

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Harvard Club of Andover will be held at the Phillips Inn on Thursday, March 28. Prof. E. K. Rand of Harvard University will be the guest.

For many years the members of all the churches in Andover have been invited to join in celebrating the Holy Communion at Christ church on the evening before Good Friday. This observance together of one of the greatest acts of Christian worship will take place next Thursday evening.

The most desperate fire that the local fire department has had to fight in many years occurred about 7:30 Thursday morning at the plant of Tyer Rubber Company. The loss is estimated at $25 on the building and $500 on the contents.

The members of the Wholesale Grain Dealers association pleasantly surprised J. Warren Berry, one of the charter members, at his home on Chestnut st., on Monday by presenting him with an elegant clock. A bounteous dinner was served and was followed by toasts from the members, including George Stanley, H. K. Webster, John Shaw and Mr. Bruckmann.

25 Years Ago — March, 1932

Membership in the Andover Taxpayers' Association jumped 225 to 460 from the day before town meeting until yesterday. President O'Connell says the association has only started, and will meet Friday evening as usual.

The next move in the fight to prevent the state from building a school for feeble-minded in West Andover will probably be to have several petitions protesting its location here sent about the town to be signed by citizens and then forwarded to Governor Ely, according to information received from the citizens' committee. Andover, collectively and individually, will expend every effort to stop the school from coming here. This became apparent when the town meeting Monday voted a resolution stating its disapproval of the school.

Four hours and ten minutes of town meeting last Monday settled the financial destinies of Andover for the fiscal year 1932 and after the smoke of battle over issues and personalities had cleared, the town was assured of a tax rate of $21.50, the lowest since the World War.

10 Years Ago — March, 1947

The Finance Committee, newly appointed by Town Moderator Arthur Sweeney, held an organization meeting in the town house on Monday evening and appointed Howell M. Stillman, new member, chairman. Stanley F. Swanton will serve as secretary.

The directors of the Opera Garden met Saturday night at the home of Harace Killam on Porter rd. The Gilbert and Sullivan opera, "Pirates of Penzance," will be presented on Aug. 11, 13 and 15.

The Osgood School and land will be sold by the town at public auction, conducted by the Board of Selectmen on Saturday afternoon at 2:30.

Miss Claire Byrne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Byrne, 19 Canterbury st., is completing her junior year at the Fisher School in Boston.

World War II veterans attending Punchard High School are organizing a baseball team with Bernard M. Kellmurray, Guidance instructor, as coach and the boys hope to arrange a schedule of games for the spring term. Donald Becotte will assist Mr. Kellmurray, and will handle the field activities.

Two Grangers Honored For Long Service

Two long-time members of Andover Grange were recognized for their lengthy service Tuesday night by State Master E. Gerry Mansfield.

Miss Madeline Hewes of Porter rd. received her 60-year pin during the meeting in Grange Hall, while Mrs. Gladys Shattuck of Center st. will receive hers Sunday at her home. Mrs. Shattuck celebrated her 90th birthday yesterday. She has been a Grange member for 66 years.

Both are deeply interested in the work of the Andover Grange, but neither is able to attend meetings regularly now.

During the evening Tuesday, the degree team worked the third and fourth degrees.

SPRING FESTIVAL AT THE LIBRARY

Readers who look forward every spring to the festival of new books on display at the Memorial Hall Library will want to take advantage of the last two days this week, and visit both main reading room and the children's room.

There will be the usual privilege of reserving appealing titles, and the added pleasure of looking over new books in a leisurely fashion in a flower-filled room. The Andover Garden Club has carried out the theme of one display, that of Japanese books, in their arrangements placed around the room. Winners of the National Book Awards for 1956 will be grouped together; a special arrangement of books for the high school age readers has been made, and a collection of the art books has its own special place.

The Travel Talk, to be given Friday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rafton on their trip to Hawaii will attract many persons to the library. It is hoped that it will allow a little time to look in to the main reading room for a moment or two.

McKiniry Suggests New Athletic Program

To head up a strong program for both boys and girls the new Andover High School's specific Athletic Director, the hope of Punchard's basketball coach, Ken McKiniry, tendered his resignation to the School Committee last night, putting an end to 20 years of coaching basketball in the ranks.

"I've had enough," Mr. McKiniry said, "I want to devote more years of active coaching to the overall picture of athletics." McKiniry, who holds a degree in Education from the University of New Hampshire, has held the position of Athletic Director at Punchard for the past four years along with his regular teaching of Social Studies. He made it very clear to the committee that he does not intend to give up teaching, since, he pointed out, he might in the years' time want to teach entirely in order to teach exclusively.

Coaches Favor It

The joint posts of Athletic Director and Athletic Manager might well be coordinated, McKiniry said. It would mean responsibility for himself, it would involve more time — every afternoon during school year, every Saturday afternoon, and two nights weekly in the winter — but, McKiniry said, the job was what he wanted. He felt that the school needed the coaches, he added, for the better of his program.

Should the School Committee accept Mr. McKiniry's resignation, the Athletic Directorship, it would cost of $800 additional salary, so the coaches would have to be paid. Most schools, McKiniry said, have both Athletic Director and Athletic Manager, and schools have all three. A Physical Director included in the program and an Athletic Director. There must be a difference between a Physical Education program and an Athletic program, he stated. He heartily agreed that the former, now headed by Mr. Rafton, should continue to handle the elementary and junior levels but that there is a need and greater appeal for intercollegiate among the school students.

Enlarged Program

Moving into the new high school, the girls should be set up for an intercollegiate program of basketball, field hockey and tennis. McKiniry pointed out that the Junior High of eight grades should have a larger program, since the school has about 100 boys out of a total of 150 who want to compete in basketball are both an increased number of students from these grades, and a recent sent out on athletics to 163.

McKiniry Suggests New Athletic Post

To head up a strong athletic program for both boys and girls at the new Andover High School, its specific Athletic Director, the hope of Punchard's popular basketball coach, Ken McKiniry, tendered his resignation to the School Committee last week, putting an end to 20 years of coaching basketball in the high school ranks.

"I've had enough," Mr. McKiniry said of the school committee. "Four years of active coaching here, I want to devote more time to a general picture of athletics in general."

McKiniry, who holds a B. S. degree in Education from the University of New Hampshire and Masters' Degree from Calvin College, has held the post of Faculty Manager at Punchard for the past four years along with his regular teaching of Social Studies. He made it very clear to the Committee that he does not intend to give up teaching, since, as he pointed out, he might in another five years' time want to give up teaching entirely in order to turn to coaching exclusively.

Coaches Favor It

The joint posts of Faculty Manager and Athletic Director might well be coordinated, McKiniry said. It would mean greater responsibility for himself, and it would involve more working time - every afternoon during the school year, every Saturday during the winter - but, McKiniry said, the job was what he wanted and that the school needed. Most of the coaches, he added, were in favor of his program.

Should the School Committee accept Mr. McKiniry's proposal for the Athletic directorship, it will mean a salary of $800 additional to his salary, so the coach pointed out. Most schools, McKiniry said, have both Athletic Director and Faculty Manager, and some schools have all three with a Physical Director included.

There must be a differentiation between a Physical Education program and an Athletic program, he stated. He heartily agreed that the former, now headed by Donald Chan, should continue to expand in the elementary and junior high levels but that there is greater appeal and greater appeal for in-school athletics among the high school students.

Enlarged Program

Moving into the new high school, girls should be set up in an interscholastic program of basketball, field hockey and possibly volleyball, McKiniry pointed out. The Junior High of eighth and ninth graders should have an enlarged program, since there are about 100 boys out of a present 150 who want to compete. Track and basketball are both showing an increased number of boys enrolled from these grades, he said.

He then told the board that he had recently sent out a survey report on athletics to 165 boys in the area.

There will be the usual privilege of reserving appealing titles, and the added pleasure of looking over new books in a leisurely fashion in a flower-filled room. The Andover Garden Club has carried out the theme of one display, that Japanese books, in their arrangements placed around the room.

Winners of the National Book Awards for 1956 will be grouped together; a special arrangement of books for the high school readers has been made, and a collection of the art books has its own special place.

The Travel Talk, to be given Friday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rafton on their trip to Hawaii will attract many persons to the library. It is hoped that it will allow a little time to look to the main reading room for a moment or two.

10th, 11th and 12th grades and received 150 returns. Seventy-two favored a sports program; 46 stated they were working and had no time for sports. The survey showed 32 wanted winter hockey.

Members of the School Committee engaged Mr. McKiniry in a discussion on costs of equipment, what sports paid for themselves in gate receipts, what wear-expectancy various garments had, how much new equipment had to be added yearly and how much was reconditioned, etc. An outstanding figure mentioned was $150 as the cost to outfit one boy for football.

A question was raised as to what additional duties an Athletic Director would have over that of Faculty Manager, and was answered, "full supervision of all other coaches, responsibility of equipment, and every afternoon duty overseeing program."

The following are the coaches now on the school's staff: Robert McIntyre, Robert Collier, Joseph M. Normandy Jr., Benjamin Dimlich, Joseph Wright, Sally Marshall, Vincent Davey and Drummond Bissett.

Despite the fact that many people think of the bow as an bid had been approved because as he put it, the only reason he was interested in the job in the first place was to acquire certain of the wood materials for a construction interest now in progress. This, Chairman Sidney P. White maintained, was regrettable on all sides but that it was a matter for Mr. Sorenson to decide for himself. Everything in the Board's power has been done to evacuate the tenants, Mr. White stated. They have been notified of the necessity to move since last November, have been given extensions on firm promises to be out by March 1, and now the Board will use legal action, he said. Mr. Sorenson finally agreed to accept the job.

Large Group Keeps Interest In Sailing

Andover may have lost its illustrious sailing enthusiast, Mr. Mary Hogan, to the yachting town of Marblehead, but her annual spring recruiting for the School Sailing Club still continues to attract an ever increasing number of local boys and girls.

Mrs. Hogan, formerly of Hildred, is the originator of the School Sailing Club along with Mrs. Bedford H. Wood, of Highland. In fact Mrs. Hogan can almost be said to be the originator of the popular "Turnabout," now a national class boat for sailing youngsters, for it was she who designed and developed it along with the builder, Harold Turner.

The first Turnabout, which was taken to victory in many international and regional races by Mary's daughter, Polly, was built in the basement of the Hogan's Highland home. The Turnabout has remained the standard training boat for the club with a total of 32 boats now in the fleet.

Meeting once again at the Marblehead Club for a seven week spring workout, the opening scheduled for April 3, with a slate of regattas planned for schools, including Boston Latin, Cambridge School, Gloucester High, St. George's of Newport, Teller Academy, Proctor, Lerch, M.I.T., Middlebury, Brown and Harvard.

The college regattas will this year the new English "Cadet," which is a narrow under 11 feet, weighing pounds and having a jib and mizzen.

Only the Schools' top sailers compete in these regattas and the traveling team members. This year Andover's trophy taker in the Schools Sailing Club for the past two years, a traveling team member, 11-year-old Barry Blaisdell, will not be in the running. He will be looking for 1100 honors in the Marblehead series come May, putting him newly acquired "Blazer" for the first time.

BILL OF FARE AT MEETING

low price, being the inspector he is, he couldn't resist weighing them out before cooking. Undoubtedly he was left to ponder the same, age-old question, "when is a bargain not a bargain?" as any other citizen.

Inspector Jones cited various cases of violations of state laws governing metering systems on oil trucks which have been supplying oil to Andover gas stations. The majority of these trucks, it was stated, did not meet the state requirements and are subsequently being denied the right to make fuel deliveries in town. Their cases have been referred to the State Division for proper handling.

Going into the intricacies of these violations, it was brought out that a truck which does not carry the necessary back pressure valves can register great inaccuracies in the amount of the oil it leaves at stations.

Continuing his report to the Selectmen, Inspector Jones stated that the State and Federal Milk Board has taken up the subject of underweight milk. He then showed the board what his department has in the way of weights, and requested permission to buy a new test weight kit which would enable him to meet full weight capacity. The amount of $192.50 less discounts was approved by the board for this purpose.

Dynamite Storage

A petition for a permit to store dynamite in a proposed new, specially-constructed cement vault was presented to the committee by Eugene Mercier of Toppling rd., with his proposed underground site at his place of business on Lupine rd. He was represented by counsel, Atty. Richard K. Gordon.

The board voted to issue the permit, effective when the building meets the approval of both the Building Inspector and Fire Chief.

MRS. FISHER LEFT ESTATE TO SON

Her son, Norman J. Pratt Sr. of Memorial cir., was bequeathed all of the property of his mother, Mrs. Ida May Fisher of Andover, it was made known when her will was recorded recently in the Registry of Probate.

Mrs. Fisher, who died Jan. 26, drew up the instrument Jan. 8 and nominated Mr. Pratt as the executor. She stated that it was her intention that her husband, Neal H. Fisher of Alderwood Manor, Wash., "shall not share in any part of my estate". She gave the son her interest in community property which she had the legal power to dispose of, leaving the

VAST GUIDANCE PROJECT HERE

There's the business about the mimeographed list of subject offerings your son or daughter may have brought home to you last week. Now you begin to see that this was only one step — the first one — in a whole planned progression of steps to help the Guidance Department function to a high degree of effectiveness both in point of curricula and also in individual, personal counselling service which goes on all the year long.

To understand the machinations of the busy Guidance Department under Mr. Kellmurray, one must at first realize that it works in full accord with the whole administrative program. There is a definite plan here — a plan which works under the influence of a philosophy pretty closely shared by the two chief figures interviewed — Mr. Kellmurray and Headmaster Lindsay J. March.

The philosophy is one of common sense, and in common sense terms it is simply this — that all children develop best and accomplish most when they are working to reach their own accepted objectives rather than following an assigned task. To this end the guidance plan involves first, a careful inventory of scholastic and social pursuits of each student; a matching up of past performance and a checking of grades.

First Steps
All important data is at the fingertips of Mr. Kellmurray and his guidance staff when the student is called in for his interview. The student has had in his possession a copy of the courses of study for the following academic year and has had an opportunity to discuss it with his parents, and to present a designated choice at the time of the interview.

This may all seem cut and dried up to this point, but the fact is, the plan for the oncoming year has only reached its first stages. The important task is completed when the student understands where his weak areas exist and how he can best fill them in to arrive at his own goals within the framework of his academic years.

In the 10th grade requirement-planning is done to forecast the necessary 16 units of work for the earning of a diploma. Necessary adjustments are made in the Junior year, for a student's grades have great bearing on his field of study for the following year. A mark of C or better is required in Latin, French, or college preparatory mathematics before a pupil may enroll in the next higher class in the same area of study.

Many wrinkles are ironed out before the senior year.

Not Always That Way

This was not always so.

More than occasionally students discovered on entering their senior year that they had neglected to take biology, for instance, in order to graduate, and that the class in biology just happened to conflict with another needed or wanted subject.

Formerly, under set courses of study, it was necessary to change drastically the entire program if the student found he had chosen a field he didn't like.

Now it is possible to make adjustments without whole revisions, and thus a pattern is cut to fit a student's individual needs.

Personal Guidance

Aside from scholastic guidance, there are the many interviews for a vast incidence of problems which beset the junior high and senior high boy and girl. These Mr. Kellmurray's department handles with courage and skill.

The problems belong to every boy and girl. Worry about the future; their own future against the future of the world; choice of a career, a college, the draft, and so on. There's the individual versus group conflict; and the getting along with others problem; or necessity of contributing to one's family's support; health and home problems of many kinds, and just plain "things in general."

Out of all this maze of tremendously important work, even the most casual eye catches a glaring administrative need — that of increased clerical help. The need will grow more acute as the move to the new high school is effected, but it cannot be assumed that the need is a temporary one. Far from it.

With increased enrollments (an 80-pupil increase in the 10th grade next year, and a slight increase in the senior class), there will be more record cards to compile; more college boards to plan for; more letters to be written in application to colleges; more letters of recommendation for jobs; more transcripts; plus and entire, new cross-filing system to be instituted. This, of course, is a problem that may well come up for discussion just before the next school budget is drawn.

BPW Sets Policy On All Services

The town will either supervise or actually install water and sewer connections, from street to house, under a policy laid down Monday night by the BPW.

A three-point program for installations was set up, calling for the town's participation in the work — but with no expense involved.

A homeowner or builder desiring the installation will be asked to either furnish the materials or give the town a check for them, made out to the supplier.

The individual will also be responsible for getting a contractor to dig and backfill the trench, out to the main, or will be expected to pay for all normal digging and filling.

The town will provide the labor, laying the pipes from street right into the house, but then will bill the homeowner for that work.

The policy decision came after considerable debate, revolving around the Board's desire to more adequately supervise the work while not flying in the face of town meeting, which refused funds for the department to do the work itself. The BPW had proposed doing the entire job and charging the homeowner for it. But the Finance Committee argued that the town should not get into the construction business and the voters agreed, turning down the requested appropriations.

Under the new system, the town will do only a small portion of the work, but will have immediate supervision over the project.

Member Francis Reilly, during the discussion suggested that small contractors would face a problem if the old system was maintained. Under it, the contractor bought the materials, dug the trench and laid the pipe to the street. The town did the street work. But he suggested that contractors were taking an ever-increasing risk doing this work, because many persons were not prompt in payment once their water was turned on.

(Author's Name Below)

One of the most important discoveries of this age of new medicine is the right use of vitamins. Properly taken they are a blessing to mankind.

Be cautious about vitamins made for their use by untrained door-to-door men and stores that sell them under the name of food supplements.

Compare the potency, and quality of the vitamins they sell with the brands we pharmacists prefer.

Be wise. Ask your physician or pharmacist for answer to your questions. We both dedicated to consider health more important than quick profits.
